If you have a conditional offer on a secondary Religious Education teacher training course and your first degree is not Religious Education then you may need a Subject Knowledge Enhancement (SKE) course.

The SKE course at Newman is designed to refresh or 'top-up' your Religious studies subject knowledge and gain an understanding of the locally agreed syllabus.

Newman is offering a SKE course in Religious Education

8 week course: 3rd June to 26th July 2019

This course will enable you to acquire sufficient subject knowledge to effectively deliver quality Religious Education teaching to Key Stage 3 and beyond.

Features

You will be trained by an experienced and highly qualified secondary practitioner who will guide you in developing your knowledge of the Religious Education curriculum. The structure of the course will involve self-directed study, seminars and practical work. At the start of the course you will be supported in identifying your individual subject development needs at a level appropriate for your future teaching.

The course will explore the six main world faiths taught at key stage 3 and key stage 4.

These study units will be supplemented by full day sessions.

You will be expected to carry out a substantial amount of self-study and Newman's Library and online facilities will be at your disposal.

- Introduction to SKE and Enrolment
- Introduction to the Abrahamic faiths (Judaism, Christianity and Islam)
- Introduction to Religions of the East (Hinduism, Buddhism and Sikhism)
